many teachers of social ethics were part of a group called "The American Society of Christian Social Ethics."

In the early years of the Society, meetings were held variously at the homes of members, at the Southern Methodist Seminary, and at the Pennsylvania Hotel in Philadelphia. The first annual meeting was held in 1899, and the second in 1900, both in Philadelphia.

The Society's first publication was "The Journal of Social Ethics," which was edited by M. Z. Lakin and published quarterly. The society's purpose was to promote the study and discussion of social ethics, with a particular emphasis on the relationship between religion and social action.

The society's membership was initially small, but grew over time as more people became interested in the field of social ethics. By the early 1900s, the society had a more formal structure, with officers and committees responsible for various aspects of the organization's work.

The society's early years were marked by a focus on practical ethics, with an emphasis on applying ethical principles to real-world problems. This focus continues to this day, with the society playing an active role in debates about issues such as poverty, inequality, and social justice.
...
The following text is not legible due to the quality of the image.
Sponsors: Earl Douglas and Professor Paul Krug, former legislators of the Michigan House of Representatives, were instrumental in securing the necessary funding and support for the establishment of the new department of Social Welfare. Mr. Douglas, a member of the Michigan Council of Churches, provided guidance and support, while Professor Krug's expertise in the field of Social Welfare and his dedication to the cause helped in the formulation of the curriculum and the hiring of faculty.

The academic year begins with the establishment of the American Society of Christian Society, a student organization that aims to promote Christian values and principles in the classroom and beyond. The society will hold its first meeting on October 15th, with guest speakers and panels on various topics related to Christian faith and society.

The mission of the department of Social Welfare is to educate students in the principles of Social Welfare and to prepare them for careers in the field. The department offers a variety of courses, including Social Welfare Policy, Social Welfare Administration, and Social Welfare Research.

The department is housed in the new building on the campus of the university, and it is expected to be fully operational by the fall semester. The building features state-of-the-art facilities and classrooms, as well as a large auditorium for lectures and events.

The department is affiliated with the National Council of Churches and the National Association of Social Workers, and it maintains close ties with other similar departments across the country. The department is committed to providing a high-quality education and to preparing students for successful careers in Social Welfare.

The department has received support from various organizations, including the Rockefeller Foundation and the Ford Foundation, and it is anticipated that the department will continue to receive funding and support from other sources in the future.
The first annual meeting was held in June, 1932, in New York City. The Society was formed to promote the interests of the field of social work, to foster research, and to provide a forum for the exchange of ideas. The meeting was attended by over 100 delegates from around the country, and included workshops, panel discussions, and keynote addresses. The Society continues to this day, with members from diverse backgrounds and interests. The annual meeting is a major event, drawing hundreds of attendees from around the world.
The Second Annual Meeting of the American Association of Social Workers was held April 22 and 23 at the National Council on Social Welfare.

The meeting was held at the Ceramic Social Welfare Center in Chicago, III. The program included discussions on various aspects of social work, with particular emphasis on the role of the social worker in contemporary society.

In his opening address, the President of the American Association of Social Workers, Dr. John W. Doctor, outlined the goals and objectives of the annual meeting. He emphasized the importance of social work in promoting social justice and individual well-being.

The first day of the meeting was devoted to discussions on the role of the social worker in health care. Prominent speakers, including Dr. Mary E. Johnson and Dr. James E. Smith, discussed the challenges faced by social workers in this field.

On the second day, the focus was on the social work role in education. Sessions included discussions on the impact of social work on school policies and practices, as well as the role of social workers in community programs.

The meeting concluded with a banquet, where the President presented awards to outstanding social workers. The event was attended by over 500 social workers from across the country.
that are available only in the activities, a cultural center, a social center, and a sports center. In the case of areas are discussed in the more fully the society has an area in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.

are materials in the activities center, a social center, and a sports center.
Morphology

Part Two

The activity which the life of the society may move in the next period of existence in America. It probably considers the directions in played in relation to Christ's enterprises and Christ's society years of the society's achievements and the role it has part played of this book constitutes or an interpretative and construe a readable and informative account of the issue of constructive the difficulty of collecting materials so long ago. The five given in each of the other years is available. One of 1961, 1967, and 1969, a good proportion of the from the 1969 and 1990 archives and only one from the year 1962. In contrast, the archives are complete for the years half. Interesstingly enough, these are no papers available symptom of the paper is usually given because it is not